Target Date 2000–2014

Target-date portfolios provide diversified exposure to equities, bonds, and cash for those investors who have a specific date in mind (in this case, the years 2000-2014) for retirement or another goal. These portfolios aim to provide investors with an optimal level of return and risk, based solely on the target date. These portfolios get more conservative as the goal date approaches by investing more in bonds and cash. Investment managers structure these portfolios differently; two funds with the same goal year may have different allocations to equities and therefore different levels of return and risk. The category excludes guaranteed funds.

Alternative

Alt – Currency

Currency portfolios invest in multiple currencies through the use of short term money market instruments; derivative instruments, including and not limited to, forward currency contracts, index swaps and options; and cash deposits. These funds include both systematic currency traders and discretionary currency traders.

[Funds in this category do not receive a Morningstar Rating™.]

Alt – Debt Arbitrage

These funds seek out pricing discrepancies between various private and public fixed income instruments, usually looking for global opportunities. Portfolio managers in this category primarily invest in fixed-income derivative instruments. These funds tend to have low beta exposures (< 0.3 in absolute value) to bond market indexes such as the Barclay's Capital Aggregate Bond index. This is in contrast to other debt categories, which have higher net market exposures.

[Funds in this category do not receive a Morningstar Rating™.]

Alt – Diversified Arbitrage

These funds seek out pricing discrepancies between pairs or combinations of securities regardless of the asset class. These funds often employ combinations of the Debt Arbitrage, Equity Arbitrage, and Convertible Arbitrage among other relative value strategies. These funds exhibit little market directionality. These funds tend to have low beta exposures to all risky indexes.

[Funds in this category do not receive a Morningstar Rating™.]

Alt – Event Driven

These funds attempt to profit when securities prices change in response to certain corporate actions, such as bankruptcies, mergers and acquisitions, emergence from bankruptcy, shifts in corporate strategy, and other atypical events. Activist shareholders and distressed securities investors also fall into this category.

[Funds in this category do not receive a Morningstar Rating™.]

Alt – Fund of Funds - Equity

These funds have statistically significant betas relative to at least one equity index, and primarily derive their directionality from equity-related alternative fund strategies. Equity funds can diversify across geography or concentrate in a particular region.

[Funds in this category do not receive a Morningstar Rating™.]

Alt – Fund of Funds - Multistrategy

Multistrategy funds generally have statistically significant betas to multiple asset classes (e.g., debt, equity, event driven and global derivatives), without enough asset-class concentration to belong to another alternative fund-of-funds category. That is, no one asset class drives a majority of the funds' directionality.

[Funds in this category do not receive a Morningstar Rating™.]

Alt – Fund of Funds - Other

These funds invest in managers following investment processes tied to a single type of alternative strategy other than equity. They are therefore distinct from equity funds of funds and multistrategy funds of funds. Examples include credit strategies, relative value, or managed futures.

[Funds in this category do not receive a Morningstar Rating™.]

Alt – Global Macro

These funds base investment decisions on an assessment of the broad macro-economic environment. They look for investment opportunities by studying such factors as the global economy, government policies, interest rates, inflation, and market trends. As opportunists, these funds are not restricted by asset class and may invest across such disparate assets as global equities, bonds, currencies, derivatives, and commodities. These funds primarily invest through derivatives markets. They typically make discretionary trading decisions rather than using a systematic strategy. At least 60% of the funds' exposure is obtained through derivatives.

[Funds in this category do not receive a Morningstar Rating™.]

Alt – Long/Short Debt

These funds primarily take directional positions in global debt. Long and short positions are typically independent of each other. Positions do not fully offset each other, and result in net exposures less than -20% or greater than 20% in a majority of periods. The majority of the funds' assets are invested in debt investments, but the fund manager may also include other instruments. These funds may invest in emerging market, US, global debt issuance, and credit default swaps. Specialty finance funds such as mezzanine financing and debtor-in-possession (DIP) funds are also included in this category. At least 75% of the exposure is tied to fixed income investments, and short exposure is greater than 20%.

[Funds in this category do not receive a Morningstar Rating™.]

Alt – Long/Short Equity - Emerging Markets

These funds take long and short positions in emerging-market equities. At least 75% of the funds' gross exposure is in emerging-market equities. They may gain this exposure directly and/or via derivative instruments. These funds will typically have a beta exposure of greater than 0.3 to emerging market equity indexes such as MSCI EM.

[Funds in this category do not receive a Morningstar Rating™.]

Alt – Long/Short Equity - Europe

These funds primarily take long and short positions in European equities. At least 75% of the funds' gross exposure is in European equities. They may gain this exposure directly and/or via derivative instruments. These funds will typically have a beta exposure of greater than 0.3 to European equity indexes such as MSCI Europe.

[Funds in this category do not receive a Morningstar Rating™.]

Alt – Long/Short Equity - Global

These funds primarily take long and short positions in equity securities, but do not fit into any of the other regional categories because they do not have a primary regional focus. At least 75% of the funds' gross exposure is in equities. They may gain this exposure directly and/or via derivative instruments. These funds will typically have a beta exposure of greater than 0.3 to a global stock index such as MSCI World.

[Funds in this category do not receive a Morningstar Rating™.]

Alt – Long/Short Equity - UK

These funds primarily take long and short positions in UK equities. At least 75% of the funds' gross exposure is in UK equities. They may gain this exposure directly and/or via derivative instruments. These funds tend to have betas of 0.3 and higher relative to UK market indexes such as the FTSE All Share.

[Funds in this category do not receive a Morningstar Rating™.]

Alt – Long/Short Equity - US

These funds primarily take long and short positions in US equities. At least 75% of the funds' gross exposure is in US equities. They may gain this exposure directly and/or via derivative instruments. These funds tend to have betas of 0.3 and higher relative to US market indexes such as the S&P 500.

[Funds in this category do not receive a Morningstar Rating™.]

Alt – Market Neutral - Equity

These funds attempt to reduce systematic risk created by factors such as exposures to sectors, market-cap ranges, investment styles, currencies, and/or countries. They try to achieve this by matching short positions within each area against long positions. These strategies are often managed as beta neutral, dollar neutral, or sector neutral. A distinguishing feature of funds in this category is that they typically have low beta exposures (< 0.3 in absolute value) to equity market indexes such as the MSCI World. In attempting to reduce systematic risk, these funds put the emphasis on issue selection, with profits dependent on their ability to sell short and buy long the correct securities.

[Funds in this category do not receive a Morningstar Rating™.]

Alt – Multistrategy

These funds offer investors exposure to several different alternative-fund investment tactics. In most of these cases, all of the assets are managed in-house at the fund, but the assets may be divided between multiple portfolio managers, each of whom focuses on a different strategy. This is not to be confused with a Fund of Funds, which uses external portfolio managers and strategies, and which incurs a second layer of management and performance fees. An investor's exposure to different tactics may change slightly over time in response to market movements.

[Funds in this category do not receive a Morningstar Rating™.]

Alt – Systematic Futures

These funds trade liquid global futures, options, and foreign exchange contracts largely according to trend-following strategies (i.e. greater than 50% of fund assets are allocated to such strategies). These strategies are price driven (technical), rather than fundamental and systematic (automated) rather than discretionary. Trend-followers typically trade in diversified global markets, including commodity, currencies, government bonds, interest rates, and equity indexes. However, some trend followers may concentrate in certain markets such as interest rates. These strategies prosper when markets demonstrate sustained directional trend, either bullish or bearish. Some systematic futures strategies involve mean reversion or counter-trend strategies rather than momentum or trend following strategies. At least 60% of the funds' exposure is obtained through derivatives.

[Funds in this category do not receive a Morningstar Rating™.]

Alt – Volatility

These funds trade volatility as an asset class. Directional volatility strategies aim to profit from the trend in the implied volatility embedded in derivatives referencing other asset classes. Volatility arbitrage seeks to profit from the implied volatility discrepancies between related securities.

Guaranteed Funds

Guaranteed funds promise and/or guarantee the repayment of all or part of the capital invested or promises a pre-determined rate of return.

Trading – Leveraged/Inverse Commodities

These funds seek to generate returns equal to a fixed multiple of the short-term returns of a commodity index, or an inverse multiple of the short-term returns of a commodity index. The compounding of short-term returns results in performance that does not correspond to those of investing in the index with external leverage over a longer holding period. For example, a fund attempting to achieve 2x the returns of a given index on a daily basis is unlikely to deliver anything like 2x the index's returns over periods longer than one day. Many of these funds seek to generate a multiple of the daily or weekly return of the reference index. Trading funds are not considered suitable for a long-term investor and are designed to be used by active traders.

Trading – Leveraged/Inverse Equity

These funds seek to generate returns equal to a fixed multiple of the short-term returns of an equity index, or an inverse multiple of the short-term returns of an equity index. The compounding of short-term returns results in performance that does not correspond to those of investing in the index with external leverage over a longer holding period. For example, a fund attempting to achieve 2x the returns of a given index on a daily basis is unlikely to deliver anything like 2x the index's returns over periods longer than one day.
